WTVS Detroit Public Television Brings Home 7 Emmy Awards

DETROIT (June 19, 2014)- The National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences Michigan Emmy Chapter recognized Detroit Public Television on Saturday, June 14, 2014 with seven Emmy Awards for documentaries in the areas of arts and entertainment, food and travel, history, and the environment. Not only did these productions highlight the cultural depth and richness of Michigan, but also the caliber and expertise of the off and on-camera teams that turned mere ideas into beautiful films:

"Detroit Public Television's production effort is unique in Michigan. The professionals who were recognized for their excellence with Emmy Awards are the team members, collaborators and partners who work together to make our programs distinctive," said Jeff Forster, Executive Vice President of Productions and Operations. We are very proud to be working with each and every one of them."
